Whose that knocking at the door on the very day, hour, and minute of a young boy's birthday party? When the boy opens the door a HUGE surprise awaits him... it's a bus-size T.Rex holding a present for the birthday boy. What should the little guy do? Mmmmmm??? Invite him in of course, the more the merrier and there's lots of "more" before him to behold. On the T.Rex's entry the whole flavour of the party changes. The T-Rex pops the bouncy castle, becomes angry when he can't blow out the candles on the cake, and breaks the piñata to bits. Oh my! The T.Rex ROOOOAAARRS, and stomps and sends his friends away after throwing a tantrum. Then he wants to play with all his lovely gifts. (I don't think so mister no way!!!) What does one do when you totally have run out of patience? "You'll order him to leave. He'll stomp and pout and blubber. But you won't care, because you'll. Have. Had. Enough!" Will the T.Rex leave quietly like he was ordered to do? Will he get even more upset and angry and maybe even explode? I think the ending will surprise you.... providing a happy ending to the tale for all!

My nephew loved this book and was really rooting for this T.Rex!
